Crime Novels - An Academic Perspective with Dr. Melissa Pennell

Thursday, March 25, 2010 at 7 p.m.

Dr. Melissa Pennell, acting associate dean, Division of Fine Arts, Humanities and Social Sciences, UMass Lowell, will discuss the genre of crime novels and how they reflect social ills. She will cover the tradition of the hard-boiled detective novel and the police procedural and how Lehane makes use of and adds innovations to both traditions.

Writing a Killer Mystery a writing workshop with Hallie Ephron

Wednesday, March 31, 2010 at 7 p.m.

You know you're reading a great mystery novel when you're up at three in the morning, unable to put it down. When you finally get to sleep, the characters go romping around in your dreams. You get to the final page and smack yourself in the head because the solution is a complete surprise, and yet so obvious in retrospect. So how do you write a great mystery? This workshop demystifies the art and artifice, and gets down to the nuts and bolts of writing a killer mystery novel.

CSI Chelmsford Tuesday, April 27, 2010 at 7 p.m.

Crime Scene Investigator, Erik Koester from the Massachusetts State Police Crime Lab in Danvers will deliver the real world picture of Crime Scene Investigations. Using a power point presentation and some hands on tools of the trade he will try to dispel some of the myths created by popular TV shows and show us how the State crime labs use science in solving crimes and convicting criminals.

Author Dennis Lehane will speak at the Performing Arts Center at Chelmsford High School Sunday,

June 13, 2010

Dennis Lehane was born and raised in Dorchester, MA.

He has written seven novels including "Shutter
